

Application of claims to bancruptcy proceedings

Abstract

This thesis deals with claiming entitlements within insolvency proceedings. The aim of this thesis is to provide a comprehensive overview of formal requirements for creditors and all types of entitlements which can be claimed in insolvency proceedings regardless at what phase of the proceeding they originated. The thesis is approached with a practical point of view with the use of years of experience in the field of insolvency law. Practical consequences are stated in each chapter. The positives and negatives of individual amendments to the Insolvency act and proposals de lege ferenda are stated in the conclusion.
