

Abstract:

The bachelor thesis deals with the setting up of social housing systems in the Czech Republic, Austria, Slovakia and Sweden. Its aim is to acquaint with the similarities and differences of social housing systems in selected European countries through the method of comparative analysis. The output of the comparison is the identification of elements in foreign systems, carried out through interviews with experts that could help improve the practice of social housing in the Czech Republic.