

Abstract

This thesis deals with the fate of a member of the Czechoslovak legion Jaroslav Skuček during the First World War. The first part consists of personal information of the soldier Jaroslav Skuček, who enlisted in the Austro-Hungarian army in 1914. The same year he became captive and enlisted in Czechoslovak legions in France. His life story is traced based on personal correspondence that has not yet been published. The work also focuses on the Czechoslovak legions operating in France.