An elastic strain field strongly influences an electron structure in a quantum dots system. The main aim of this work is to develop a program to realize Boundary Element Method - BEM for accounting that influence. Results are compared with those from Finit Element Method - FEM.