

Abstract (in English):

The diploma thesis is focused on work of teaching assistants at various types of schools and their cooperation with teachers. The thesis is divided into theoretical and empirical part. The theoretical part deals with the personality of the teaching assistant, his personal prerequisites for work and qualification requirements. It also explains the possibilities, strategies and methods of cooperation used in the interaction of teaching assistant and teacher. Attention is also paid to the clarification of basic terms related to the solved issue. The empirical part describes the methodology of research and the interpretation of obtained data within the research survey. The research was carried out by using the method of questionnaires and semi-structured interviews.
