Design and implementation of the program core, which uses syntax of the formal language, parses the input text and aplies the results in indentation and source code highlighting. The goal is to describe the way of the language processing given by formal grammar and to design the application, which builds on this principles.