

This thesis provides information and clarity on the education system in the army of the Czech Republic, as well as its role and the reason why it is needed. The thesis also describes individual steps of this education system, including a system for life-long education.

This document aims to provide basic information regarding the army of the Czech Republic, primarily the need for its existence and its tasks, but also its role in the world-wide context. Furthermore, it looks deeper into high-school and university education, as well as a vast life-long education system. The life-long education system covers an extensive offer from elementary to highly specialized courses. Additionally, the thesis tries to clarify potential career opportunities for soldiers leaving the army.

The points stated above, such as the scope of this system, and life-long education, have become the major reasons why I have selected this theme. Last but not least, the thesis provides a constructive view of this education system, some of its challenges and new areas to explore.

It provides an overview of all the education activities in the army.

This can help those who would like to get to know more facts about this complex system, since the times of army mandatory service are gone, and as such, there is not much information available. Also, this thesis could become useful material for people applying for a role in this insitute, and could provide them with better information and expectations when they decide to enter the service. I strongly hope that it will be of a benefit to all the people who would like to get to know this area to a better extent.
