The final study deals with the analysis of one part of Controlling - Internal Inspection - in the selected contributory educational organizations. Is based on general information regarding the subject stated in literature and on the analysis of actual situation in the cooperating non profit organisations. By targeted investigation carried out in specific school organizations I found out that all managers contacted by me were performing internal inspection. Mostly, though, they have been performing the inspection of the individual areas isolatedly without any systematic considerations. From my investigation it is obvious that managers (authorised representatives of the organizations or their deputies) who have completed some form of further education of pedagogical personnel focused on management are better oriented in the relevant issues. In my thesis, I suggest a systematic approach towards the internal inspection that takes into account mutual relations. It may be implemented in the conditions of all types of schools. This should bring higher efficiency in the whole management system and easier competitiveness in the market of schools.
