

The aim of my MA thesis is a general survey of the area of employment migration of the non-profit sector in the Czech Republic. My thesis uses especially qualitative methods of data collecting in order to answer the key research questions. What are the present problems of non-profit organizations? How do these institutions evaluate the cooperation with the state sector, the private sector, and other non-profit organizations? What approaches do the employees of nonprofit organizations have towards migration policy and illegal migration? In which ways does the European Union influence the execution of nonprofit organizations? On the basis of analysis, and documentary background research I also try to answer the following questions: What is the capacity of the nonprofit sector in the area of employment migration? Does the regional deviation of nonprofit organizations cover the current needs? What financial resources are used by nonprofit organizations to support their activities? What types of projects focused on employment migration already exist, and (from the employee's perspective) which ones were the most welcomed?