

The aim of this Master thesis is to give a self-contained view of the Bulgarian verbal prefixes in a comparison with Czech language in accord with the method of the diachronic and synchronic description. The aim is to present own typology of the prefixes coming out from the lexical - semantic features of each described prefix in a cooperation with the lexical - semantic ground of the non-prefix verb. The main attention is paid to demonstrate different meanings of the analysed prefixes in both of compared languages.