

The work introduces an implementation of parser constructor, based on kind grammars. Kind grammars allow using simple left recursion in syntactic rules, which makes it easier to work with certain constructions such as arithmetic expressions, that are formulated less comprehensibly when using traditional approach with LL(k) grammars.