

My project is concentrated on the problems of sweets in nourishment. In my project I deal with the question how the health of children is influenced by eating sweets, especially the eating of chocolate and ice-cream. In the theoretical part I summarize the information about sweets and its influence on the health condition. The goal of the practical part is trying to find out more about preference and consuming of sweets among teenagers.