The bachelor work was focused on specialities of nurse care for people suffering from dementia.

In the theoretical part I mention the summary of existing findings from the sphere of dementia in the medical and social viewpoint.

I collect informations exploitating the professional and specialist literature.

In my work I document factual needs of demented people, care and its specific aspects.

In the practical part I analyse and explicate the data of my own experiences obtained by the questionnaire survey and supplemental interviewing the pedagogical personnel from monitored retirements homes. Those data are focused on expert knowledge of staff and the practical routine care for demented people.
