This doctoral thesis introduces and contrasts Bergson's and Scheler's philosophical and anthropological concepts of man to compare them with the idea of man derived from the Virginia Woolf's novels To the Lighthouse and Orlando, and also from her books subtitled A Biography.