

This thesis deals with some of the aspects of spare time activities that are currently offered to children of preschool age in one area of Prague. It monitors primarily institutions that offer various leisure time activities and deals with problems such as capacity and financial affordability for current families. The theoretical section specifies the terminology related to the preschool d leisure time activities. It also presents an outline of spare time especially in relatively recent times.