

This work shows, which character interjection (parenthesis) has in nowadays Czech publicistic texts. It is an analysis of chosen periodicals, which is made based on informations and findings from studied literature. Found interjections are characterized and sorted into groups, according to various aspects (according to contentual connectivity, according to type of connection, according to contentual content and graphic selection). Then it tries to find out, which type or types are most frequent.