

The diploma's thesis is entitled Organization of Schools seasonal in nature in accordance with the current curriculum of pre-school education, settled on a comprehensive view of the issue of pre-school education in the schools in nature. It is based on past experience in this field. It takes into account the historical development of education "on the healthy air" that is in school in nature, evaluating the practical experience in the field of educational, health, psychosocial and physical. A considerable part of this work is new requirements for schools in nature in terms of the needs of the new democratic society, expressed in legislative and educational documents. In addition, the contents of this work are evaluation criteria and conditions for their fulfillment, which this entire process objectifies. The aim of this diploma thesis is to analyze existing knowledge about schools in nature, and create demonstration projects in the seasonal nature of schools as part of curricula for schools.