

Abstract

The main goal of the thesis is to describe the development and the extent of media didactics in the Czech republic. The authors who examine media pedagogy are PhDr. Jan Mašek, Ph.D. a Mgr. Zdeněk Sloboda. The subject of the thesis is to clarify the concept of media didactics. This is important for the formation of historical development of the use of media during the teaching and for highlight the importance of media during the teaching and teaching with the use of media. Finally, the thesis try to find out the effects and the extent of tablets in the czech education system. By using quantitative questionnaire research was examined 200 teachers of primary schools, secondary schools and grammar schools. Based on the acquired data is possible to answer predetermined research questions: How widespread is the use of tablets during the teaching? What is the opinion of teachers to use tablets during the teaching? Does the use of tablets during the teaching influence the effectiveness of the teaching?