

The work is based on three studies that were made during treatment of patients with chronic insomnia. The aim was to contribute to knowledge that leads to the selection of appropriate treatment for patients with chronic insomnia. The study is primarily concerned with various aspects of cognitive-behavioral psychotherapy and particularly objectifying treatment outcomes.