

The dissertation is focused on the problems of body language of preschool children. The theoretical part contains four chapters. The first one covers more general knowledge of body language. Other ones describe directly the preschool children, their communication, gestures, facial expressions and look. The fifth chapter is devoted to the experiment which involved 26 respondents straight in their kindergarten. I used to experimental method. The research surveyed three spheres : perception of expressions, expression of facial expressions and expressions of gestures.