

SUMMARY:

Title:

Canadian ice hockey players scoring HC Slavia Praha and HC Benátky nad Jizerou in relation to motor tests on the ice.

Aim of assessment:

The aim of this thesis is to determine whether the tested person with better results in motor tests also placed high on the table productivity.

Method:

The thesis is elaborated in the form of empirical qualitative research based on a comparison of productivity players measured in motor tests. This research was carried out in standardized conditions on the winter ice rink and HC Slavia Praha HC Benátky nad Jizerou, thus to minimize external influences.

Trial set players were HC Slavia Praha and HC Benátky nad Jizerou category teenagers playing ice hockey.

Results:

The results obtained could serve as an overview of the mutual relations of the Canadian motor skills and scoring on the basis of the coaches to compare individual players.

Key words:

Ice hockey, adolescence, testing, movement skills, movement skills