

Keyboard education at elementary music schools is partly limited, because there is no teaching qualification for keyboards. Therefore, teachers have less knowledge than necessary. This thesis offers instructions and hints for teachers for more complex and effective keyboard teaching. The thesis is focused on neglected parts of keyboard education. Another aim of this work is to determine a proper place of keyboards in our music education system.