

The work deals with the expectation of children before their entrance into the school. What do they know about school? What are the sources of their information? How are they prepared for the school?

This work includes two parts. The first part is theoretical. It deals with imagination and imagery from the point of view of general psychology and developmental psychology. The second part includes the analysis (qualitative and quantitative) of interviews with preschool - age children and their drawings.