

In this final project is compared how media influenced a political thinking of people in The Czech Republic during the communist regime and how they influence it now, in the time of democracy. There are described the main principals of the mass medias, the political and economical censorship, the regulation by law. The last didactical chapter contains some activities, that can help to integrate medial education into the individual subjects.