

This thesis generally deals with North American Indian myths. It attempts to offer the key for sensitive treatment with myths through comparison of hunters' mythological model with that of agricultural society. That treatment should be useful not only in institutional education. The thesis emphasizes common philosophical phenomena to inspire and stimulate modern man and to appoint their potential in art education.