

ABSTRACT

Title: The effect of migration players in the quality of the 1st Czech soccer league

Objectives: This diploma paper would like to answer question how migration of soccer players affects the quality of 1st Czech soccer league as well as general development in Czech soccer league. In the theoretical part, there are statistical data of each time period in the history of Czech soccer, focusing on results of individuals, clubs and representation. The stages were then compared with each other. In the empirical part, by using questionnaire research method was identified how migration affects and may further affect the quality of Czech soccer in the present. The result part is based on comparison of the two previous sections. After verification of these theses there have been proposed a few points which may lead to more efficient use of migration and the following improvement of 1st Czech soccer league.
