

The main topic of my final project is about Experience of patients in deep sedation. What can patients exactly feel and how they represent this feeling is important not only for medical staff, but also for their close persons.

The entire project is divided into practical and theoretical parts. The theoretical part deals with definition of terms consciousness and unconsciousness, perception and experience, pharmacotherapy of sedation, news about deep sedation. Also includes the latest issues from research in the field of deep sedation. And finally nursing care about these patients which is so important.

In the practical part, I have dealt with issues of how did patients perceive themselves, how did they perceive their surroundings, how did they perceive their loved ones and health professionals. I have chosen qualitative research methodology. I had conducted interviews with 10 respondents, who answered my questions of perception and experience

The outcome of this project is a booklet of practical approaches to patients with epilepsy in a state of deep sedation.
