Diploma thesis named The Sources of Nutrition of Lower and Middle Palaeolithic is trying to give a compact view on that part of hunters-gatherers societies’ nutrition which is represented by hunting. We use nine palaeolithic camp-sites from Upper to Early Palaeolithic to improve relevance of linear model question of hunting or there is much more probable solution? The one which said that palaeolithic hunters were established hunters from Early Palaeolithic period and the only things which changed or get improved were their abilities and experiences.
