

This Graduation thesis deals with electronization of public health in Czech Republic. It is divided in theoretic and practical part. Theoretic part contains informations of various sections of the sphere. Practical part is a simulation of RFID and NFC electronical identification model for patients and medical staff.