

This dissertation deals with the characteristics of Armenian architecture as a result of specific cultural and geographical conditions of medieval Armenia. The paper shows a basic overview of the Armenian geography, history, language and religion, followed by the chapters describing the development of Armenian architecture from pre-Christian period to the late Middle Ages. Particular attention is paid to the social role of medieval monasteries.