

Annotation

The topic of this bachelor level quality nursing care for patients, who were based AV shunt surgically. The theoretical part of the work deals with the causes that lead to the sewing AV shunt, describes the types and location of AV shunt. It warns to specific preoperative preparation and postoperative care. Also explains the impact AV shunt for each area of life.

The empirical part is based on quantitative research was conducted through an anonymous questionnaire in patients with AV shunt. It identifies the basic information about these patients, their perception of the quality of nursing care after establishing the AV shunt surgery, and what skills are on this issue.