

Annotation

The goal of bachelor's thesis is to analyze nosocomial infections as a complication of a basic disease. It focuses on prevention, following standard nurse practice and the quality of provided care.

The main part of the thesis is a survey conducted to analyse basic knowledge and precautions in the context of legislation. The analysis and interpretation provides information about health care and it is a contribution to management of medical institutions. It also suggests improvements in care of patients. The survey was conducted on health workers in field of nursing.