

This thesis deals with the city life and emphasizes its changes during the time of The First Republic, Protectorate and the postwar period. In the thirty-year period it takes down various trends in the life of provincial town Humpolec, especially the changes of the life style and inspirations and cause of this changes. It deals also with the adoption of incoming social patterns in local society.