

Bachelor's thesis deals with using the Internet in education in general and in teaching the English language. It consists of a theoretical part, which describes the Internet, a theoretical background for the use of the Internet in educational process, the need for implementation of information education in schools and showcases the current state of problems in terms of availability of literary sources. This part is followed by a practical part, where reader can find links to Web pages, which are appropriate to use in teaching English, especially as a second language.
