This bachelor work “Upbringing a child in one-parent family” deals with specific features of upbringing a child by one parent as a consequence of reasons for this family situation. The work presents risks connected with this kind of upbringing and which should be avoided by single parents. The conclusion suggests the ways of help and support both by family and friends, and professional and consulting institutions.