

This bachelor thesis, "Leo Strauss and American Neoconservatism," focuses on the description of endeavours to influence the USA foreign policy by particular USA policymakers who believed in and had studied the philosophy of Leo Strauss. The thesis describes especially those students who later got on the American political scene. Furthermore, the author follows a process of influencing the American politics by various think tanks and also follows a possible sequence of American neoconservatism on thoughts incorporated in the work and teaching of Leo Strauss.
