

This bachelor's thesis deals with idioms which are currently used in Czech journalism. The work was motivated by real interest in phraseology as a specific part of the language. Idioms were divided into groups according to their semantic coherence or other common attributes and then further analysed.