

Annotation

Author: Zbyněk Kudrna Dis.

Institution: Social Medicine Institute, Charles University in Prag, Faculty of Medicine in Hradec Králové

Title of the thesis: Emergency Medical Services staff co-operation during prehospital urgent medical care

Thesis consultant: Mgr. Michaela Schneiderová

Number of pages: 127

Number of appendices: 7

Year of defense: 2010

Key words:

interaction, Emergency Medical Services, Prehospital urgent medical care, co-operation, doctor, Critical care paramedic, Registered nurse, driver

Summary:

The bachelor's thesis are focused on Emergency Medical Services staff co-operation during prehospital urgent medical care.

Theoretical part is mapping Emergency Medical Services functioning in Czech Republic.

Empirical part consist quantitative survey, using questionnaire method with focus on Emergency Medical Services staff co-operation during pre-hospital urgent medical care. Mapping interaction at Emergency Medical Services, Emergency Medical Services staff co-operation understanding, comparing team work understanding of each member and figure out influencing factors. Research sample consists 90 respondents of Emergency Medical Services, 30 doctors, 30 critical care paramedics and registered nurses and 30 Emergency Medical Services drivers. Research was held at Central Bohemia Emergency Medical Services, in February and March 2010.