

This thesis focuses on physiotherapeutic schedule and procedure for ankle fractures. In the general part describing the ankle joint in the anatomy and function. Also, the most common fractures of the ankle and their operations. In a special section deals with a complex physiotherapy treatments for ankle fractures, including examination of the client. After a review of academic knowledge and is followed by case histories of the dish.