

The aim of the Bachelor thesis was to investigate how preschool children spend their free time after leaving the kindergarten and during the weekends. I also tried to answer the question, what percentage of the activities consists of movements activities. To get those information I used the method of a questionnaire for parents, an interview with children, an observing children and I created one week project for preschool children, which deals with sports and sports activities.