

This work is based on a study of Plato's publications The Republic and The Laws. It briefly characterizes Plato's ideal municipality and its fundamental social structure. It describes different conceptions of family in both publications and looks for their conjunctive points. It deals also with educational system in each of mentioned publications and accentuates their common and different features.