

The thesis describes the parentage, lives and activities of Gertrude of Babenberg and Judith of Thuringia, who were wives of one of our most important monarch of the 12th century Wladislaus II. Both women played an important role in the history of Czech lands, mainly in founding new monasteries. The thesis also depicts dependants of Gertrude and Judith and main attributes of their lives.