

The thesis is about rearrangements of energy metabolism in critically ill and describes metabolism of components of parenteral nutrition. The work begins with the description of stress starvation and underlying endocrine changes. The core of my diploma work is about metabolic processes, which proceed in organism with supplemented nutrients and their influence on patient's outcomes.