

The main aim of the diploma thesis is to find how the drug prevention is realised in the Prague 7 city district by researching the key players, resulting in getting the responses to the following questions : who are the key players of this realization and which role si played by the civic organizations. The additional aims are to learn if the key players have the documents decisive for the mentioned realization and which are the possibilities of the financial sources to support the provided services, especially in the civic sector. Another partial aim is to generalize the data from the research, so that they can be used also out of the Prague 7 city district and to formulate the recommendations for improving the situation.

Firstly the thesis briefly introduces the activities and the rank of the key players, that carry out the drug prevention in Prague 7: the school psychologist, drug preventionist and the civic sector organizations.

One of the chapters deals with the laws, strategical and methodical documents, that are related to the anti-drug prevention. The following chapter is devoted to the financial capacities assigned for the drug prevention realization.

The methods used in the diploma thesis were: studying the expert documents, qualitative interview with the representative group of participants, secondary data analysis and concerned observation.