

This diploma thesis should contribute to the study of czechoslovak emigration during 1968-1989. It should bring closer life stories of eight persons, who migrated at that time to Denmark. Attention is paid to the period of leaving the sending country and arrival at the host country. On the basis of episodic narrative interviews I will attempt to reconstruct reasons, which motivated narrators to leave Czechoslovakia, how they left and how they started new lives in the new society.