

In this thesis I deal first of all with relation of human to environment, landscape and their mutual influence. I solve here what all has influence on our perception of landscape, how the memory of landscape and „genius loci“ of place originates.

I also deal with forms of intervention of human activity to the environment, landscape and urban space.