

The theme of this thesis is Local Region in Education at Primary Schools in Ricany. The thesis is divided into two main parts. The first part deals with changes in education and their influence on teaching Geography: how the methods, forms of education and topics have changed. There is also a description of how the local region is included in education. There is a description of the local region, and possibilities of using the “local region” topic in education. At the end of the first part there is the summary of general objectives of teaching local region topics.

The second part offers worksheets. There are four worksheets for children with the topic Local Region Ricany. There are four different problems in the local region. In the first worksheet the question is: How to demark the local region? And in which administrative unit of the Czech Republic the local region is included? The second topic is the traffic location of the local region. The third one is about suburbanization and its problems and the last topic is the creation of tourist guide for different groups of tourists. Every worksheet includes characterization of the problem in Ricany region, guide to worksheet for teachers, specific targets of the exercises which the pupils should know after they have finished the worksheets and finally the worksheets for children.

This work is aimed at primary school teachers and it should simplify the transition from traditional teaching methods to the modern ones. It is an example of teaching methods other than frontal teaching.
