

TITLE:

Possibilities and limitations of using activating methods in contemporary school

SUMMARY:

This diploma thesis is divided into two parts: the theoretical and the practical one. The theoretical part is a literary overview of given problems. Firstly, the changes which have occurred in educational trends are briefly described. Further, the trends which are liable to contemporary school are mentioned followed by the summary of educational methods. Special attention is given to activating methods.

In the practical part, individual methods are described in view of the subjects which go with the given activities.

Last but not least the stress is put on the description of possibilities and limitations in using these methods in contemporary school.
