Due to the nonlinearity of the Einstein equations it is possible to obtain modified equations of the general relativity (with application in cosmology) just by averaging. One of the first covariant approaches to this problem is the theory of Macroscopic Gravity. Next proposed possibility is to first characterize spacetime by the Cartan scalars and then to proceed averaging procedure.