

The thesis deals with housing and inhabitants' coexistence strategies and policies which have been and are implemented by Most City Municipality.

The work analyses the causes of the current state of housing and coexistence of the inhabitants with the focus on the two socially excluded (Roma) locations (Stovky and Chánov locations), describes past and current housing strategies (building and reconstructions of the Chánov housing estate, first and second wave of flats privatisation, Integrated Plan of Most City Development – Deprived Most Zones and Civil Coexistence, Mapping 100 Action) whereas the strategies are evaluated as well in the thesis. The work also includes the housing policies stakeholders' analysis.

The work brings the examples of solutions and good practices from the other two Czech cities (Ústí nad Labem a Ostrava) and the two European Union countries (Spain and Hungary) being concerned with a similar problem like municipalities in the Czech Republic due to their high Roma populations. The experiences and good practices examples from the other cities and countries are discussed in relation to an option to utilize them in Most City.
